'Health exists for life, and life exists to maintain our existence. While we enjoy our healthy life, let us give back ...' David Johnstone CEO and founder of The Global Charity Trust.

The Global Charity Trust is a CAF (Charities Aid Foundation registered charity number 268369) Charitable Trust which directly supports charitable projects across the world.

The Global Charity Trust's philanthropy aims to have social conscience and to directly support specific worldwide charity projects, where 100% of the money raised goes directly into a cause and does not get absorbed into administration costs.

David Johnstone, CEO and Founder of the Free Holdings Group, alongside his partner Lord Stanley Fink also look to directly support a broad spectrum of charity sectors including helping children, the environment, education, health, animal welfare and many more to ensure that they 'give something back and leave the next generation with a legacy to be proud of'.

Education and preservation are one of The Global Charity Trust priorities, as it is an investment into society itself; education projects aiming to produce a greater proportion of people who have lives more fulfilling and participatory both in work and outside, thus taking more social responsibility.

The Global Charity Trust works alongside many respected charities such as Keep a Child Alive, Tusk and Nordoff Robbins.

'When we are all fit and well, we all have good advice for those who are in trouble. The Global Charity Trust aims to practically give back to specific causes, rather than just talking, we act! '.

With a philanthropic nature; The Free Holdings Group combines luxury with a social responsibility: from small projects to large endeavors; the value of a gift cannot be measured by its price.

With each of the affiliated Free Holdings companies giving up to 10% to The Global Party Charity Trust, Johnstone and Fink aim to make a difference; helping to support individual good causes and also raising funds for innovative projects.
